

The guidance to tribunals agreed in Scotland is that where the psychological element in respect of mobility activity 1 is likely to be significant then the appeal should be adjourned and these cases will be relisted after 20 January 2018 when it will be clear whether an appeal is proceeding and further guidance will then be issued. Judges should indicate in the adjournment decision notice that this is an appeal which comes within the ambit of RF v SSWP & Ors [2017] EWHC 3375 (Admin) [2017] to assist with relisting.